What you'll learn

Module 4: Reflecting on practice Pedagogy for specialist subjects Inclusion* Action research

Module 5: Innovating the curriculum What is the curriculum? Models and ideologies Influences on the curriculum Curriculum and course design

Module 6: Developing professional practice Contemporary issues in the FE and skills sector Implications of initiatives and agendas, e.g. marketisation, sustainability, social justice, entrepreneurship* Professional development

Assessments / Exams

Assessment is continuous over 2 years and each module is assessed.

Progress Log: This is a reflective diary and an important personal record of your own development. It includes a professional action plan, key learning points in your subject area, and evaluation of your progress towards the Professional Standards for Teachers and Trainers.

Teaching observations: You will be observed 4 times a year by your mentor, or a tutor from CCCU, or a tutor from BDC. You must provide the observer with a detailed lesson plan and background information about the group. The observer will provide you with detailed feedback and targets for development. You must also evaluate your own lesson.

Peer observation: You will observe another teacher's session, commenting on and evaluating a different focus for each module. This will be compared and contrasted with your own practice.

Module assignment: Assignments are 2000 word essays or reports on an area related to each module; sometimes they may be based on your own research or involve a presentation. You must read relevant literature and reference your work using Harvard style.
