Overview

Train to become a teacher by applying for our teacher training qualification.

You will learn all about working in the education sector.

City & Guilds

What you'll learn

The qualification covers the knowledge and skills required by teachers in the further education and skills sector, such as:

- the roles, responsibilities and relationships in education and training
- planning and delivering inclusive teaching and learning

- assessment of learners and constructive feedback
- facilitating learning and development for individuals
- facilitating learning and development in groups
- understanding principles and practices of assessment

It is an ideal introduction to a teaching career with adult learners or in the further education and skills sector.

Assessments / Exams

There will be continuous assessment of written and practical assignments throughout the programme.

You will be required to plan, deliver and reflect on a 20-30 minute micro-teach on a subject of your choice to other members of your group. You will also write up your observation notes and feedback to other group members on their micro-teaches.

Entry requirements

There are no specific qualifications required.

What this course leads to

You could work as teacher, trainer or learning support assistant in a range of organisations in the lifelong learning sector, such as FE colleges, adult and community education and private sector training providers.

You could go on to do the level 5 Diploma in Education and Training. If you already have a degree, you could do the Level 6 PGCE. Achieving level 5 or 6 would enable you to apply for qualified teacher status (QTLS).
